NEW YORK, November 18, 1908. Cornelius N. Bliss ranks first among the great merchants of New York, and among the solid, conservative business community of this great city his name and his opinions command respect and confidence. He might have any honor he would ask. He has enjoyed many and has declined more. He might have been governor of New York half a dozen times if he had been willing to accept the nomination, or he could have had a seat in the United States Senate. He has declined the post of Secretary of the Treasury several times, but during his long and active career. dating back to the civil war, he has never short time he served as Secretary of the Interior to oblige President McKinley and because he was the only man upon whom the conflicting factions of the republican party in this state could unite. Mr. Bliss was treasurer of the republican national committee for a generation, and politics, has resigned all of the great pubic responsibilities he has been carrying his counting house every day.

Money Easy and Cheap.

"The savings bank deposits have fallen off only twenty-nine million during the recent depression, which is exceedingly favorable and means that only a small portion of the wage-earners of the country were obliged to draw upon their savings. The present tendency in savings banks deposits is upward, and I anticipate a considerable increase during the coming year. Large amounts of money have been seeking investment since the election. The sales of bonds and gilt-edged stocks have been unusually large, and money is easy and cheap. At the bank today we passed call loans at 2 per cent and first-class stances be reported, as such complaints paper for 314 and 4 per cent.
